ANNUAL REPORT

OF THE

Board of Education,

OF THE

TOWN OF RYE, N. H.

For the Year ending, March 1.

REPORT.

CITIZENS OF RYE :—

In presenting our report we would in the first place say, that our schools are not perfect, they have their failings; yet we feel assured that this year's progress will compare favorably with that of former years, in fact in some schools there has been a decided improvement over schools in other towns which your Committee have visited.

Your Committee in committing the pupils of the town to the care of the teachers, urged them to do all things well, to give thorough drill in all the branches taught, Arithmetic in particular, also in the pronouncing of words, and your Committee in their visits have tried to aid in securing these results.

We have introduced the following text-books. Greenleaf's Arithmetic, Mersurvey's Book-keeping, Avery's Philosophy, Dunglinson's Physiology, Appleton's Historys, Harkness' Latin, Grammar and Reader. There are also one set of White's Charts in each of the four Schools.

Your Committee would not have introduced these text-books unless they considered them the best works, and we are very happy to state, that at the Teacher's Institute, held at Portsmouth, January 29th. '91, most of the above works were considered the best.

It is useless to tell the people of this town, of the benefits derived of having good schools, for you are very liberal in your appropriations, and according to State Superintendent Patterson's report there are only a few towns that excel us per capita.

The High School was taught in the Spring term, first by Mr. M. C. Leonard, who taught the school the previous year, and who is known as a good teacher. At the end of one month Mr. Leonard resigned to accept a more lucrative position. The term was finished by Mr. A. B. Cole, who under the circumstances did well.

The Winter term was taught by Mr. W. E. Soule, a graduate of College. Mr. Soule's method of discipline was to "rule by love and not by fear," and he succeeded in winning the affection of his pupils. His idea was, not to compel them to do their duty, but to incite them to duty.

As modern civilization is a civilization of culture, brain power and inventive genius, rather than one of physical force and despotism, so there is no reason why a teacher should not use modern methods in discipline. The pupils made great progress.

The West School was taught by Miss E. Josie Marston, of North Hampton. She fully sustained her previous reputation as a successful teacher. She possesses a dignity with pleasant manners, very becoming and helpful to a teacher.

The South School was taught, in the Spring term by Miss Annie B. Kimball of Hyde Park, Mass. The older scholars made progress but it was not so marked in the smaller scholars.

The Fall term was taught by Miss Margrete Knowles, of Me. The school as a whole did not make much improvement, except in reading.

The Winter term was taught by Miss Maria E. Smith. A change of teachers impedes the progress of any school, and this school was no exception to the rule. Miss Smith by industry and zeal, enabled the school to overcome the difficulty and the pupils have made greater advancement this term, than the other two terms combined. The first class in Arithmetic did great credit to themselves, and to the teacher, and what was true of the first class was also true of all others. Miss Smith was alive to the work in every respect, she has evidently made the business a study.

The Centre School was taught by Miss Abbie J. Hale, of Rowley, Mass. The cultured and graceful manners of this teacher commands the love and respect of her pupils, and made the school interesting and pleasing. She has the enviable faculty of making the school-room a happy place and the duty of studying something agreeable and pleasant. Her teaching is a success and her refining influence is very desirable in any community.

The East School was taught by Miss Sarah D. Curtis, of Hampton Falls.

A love of teaching and enthusiasm, are characteristics of this teacher, giving to her labors good results. She not only had the love and respect of her pupils, but the parent also, and with teacher, parents and pupils working together there could be only one result, i.e. great advancement. This school had the best class in Grammar in town. It is pleasing to note the interest the parents have taken to secure the attendance of their children, and also their visits to the school.

With the hope that greater interest may be taken in the education of our children, and that our schools may advance and be among the best in the State— your Chairman lays down his trust as happily as he was anxious to take it up.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN D. MARSTON.	} Board of Education.
